

Author's Name:

Purpose and organization

	Needs Work	Meets Standard	Exceeds Standard
Is there an effective, well-written lead sentence (not summary) that includes a strong, clear thesis?
Is there specific evidence? Is this evidence set up and does it support the lead and thesis?
Is the evidence analyzed effectively, connecting to the lead and thesis?
Is there are finisher that smoothly wraps up the paragraph and reflect on the argument?

Grammar, usage, and mechanics

Is the paper relatively free of errors?
Does the writing flow and show sophisticated use of language?

Run-on sentences (r/o)
Fragments
Capitalization
Commas
Awkward sentences
Silly typos/editing errors

Possessives/apostrophes
Semi-colons (;) and colons (:)
to/too/two weather/whether there/their/they're woman/women

lose/loose where/were it's/its knew/new other homonyms

Author's Name:

Purpose and organization

	Needs Work	Meets Standard	Exceeds Standard
Is there an effective, well-written lead sentence (not summary) that includes a strong, clear thesis?
Is there specific evidence? Is this evidence set up and does it support the lead and thesis?
Is the evidence analyzed effectively, connecting to the lead and thesis?
Is there are finisher that smoothly wraps up the paragraph and reflect on the argument?

Grammar, usage, and mechanics

Is the paper relatively free of errors?
Does the writing flow and show sophisticated use of language?

Run-on sentences (r/o)
Fragments
Capitalization
Commas
Awkward sentences
Silly typos/editing errors

Possessives/apostrophes
Semi-colons (;) and colons (:)
to/too/two
weather/whether there/their/they're woman/women

lose/loose where/were it's/its knew/new other homonyms